OverviewAs a Senior Software Engineer within our Server Engineering team, you will work collaboratively with the Dev team as well as the Mobile Operator to help build a network stack to support millions of users. You come from a systems or development background (or are comfortable in both areas). You are self-directed and have the ability to track solutions from design through implementation, owning every step along the way. We strive for a deep understanding of the core technologies that are being used while building redundancy and establishing best practices.

ResponsibilitiesWe've developed a platform that integrates with mobile client-side library and apps along with mobile network carrier systems. The Server Engineer would be responsible for further developing, securing, and scaling the backend infrastructure to support the platform in order to handle millions of concurrent API calls.
