Company: Aimpoint Digital

Location: Medellín

Category: computer-and-mathematical

What you will do

Do you enjoy working with clients from different industries to investigate complex business problems and to design end-to-end analytical solutions that will improve their existing processes and ability to derive data-driven insights?

Aimpoint Digital is a dynamic and hybrid data and analytics consultancy in Medellín. We work alongside the most innovative software providers in the data engineering space to solve our clients' toughest business problems. At Aimpoint Digital, we believe in blending modern tools and techniques with tried-and-true principles to deliver optimal data engineering solutions.

You will:

Become a trusted advisor working together with our clients, from data owners and analytic users to C-level executives

Work independently as part of a small team to solve complex data engineering use-cases across a variety of industries

Design and develop the analytical layer, building cloud data warehouses, data lakes, ETL/ELT pipelines, and orchestration jobs

Work with modern tools such as Snowflake, Databricks, Fivetran, and dbt and credentialize your skills with certifications

Write code in SQL, Python, and Spark, and use software engineering best-practices such as Git and CI/CD

Support the deployment of data science and ML projects into production

Note: You will not be developing machine learning models or algorithms

Who you are:

We are building a diverse team of talented and motivated people who deeply understand business problems and enjoy solving them. You are a self-starter who loves working with data to build analytical tools that business users can leverage daily to do their jobs better. You are passionate about contributing to a growing team and establishing best practices.

As a Senior Data Engineer, you will be expected to work independently on client engagements, take part in the development of our practice, aid in business development, and contribute innovative ideas and initiatives to our company.
